Crisis Counselling

Jobseekers who experience a Crisis Event have significant personal and environmental barriers to their job search.

A crisis is an event that can lead to an unstable and dangerous situation affecting an individual. A crisis event affects every aspect of a persons life.

A crisis, left unmanaged, will become depression—requiring long term, costly intervention.

Crisis counselling involves offering support and stabilization of the current situation. It aims to help clients develop coping skills to deal with the immediate crisis.

Situational crises are sudden and unexpected, such as accidents, can be caused by substance abuse or by the poverty cycle.

For a person to actively & successfully participate in employment, non-vocational barriers must be resolved.
